Five Wagon Loads of People Were

Some Had Not Eaten for 48 Hours.

Chicago, July 26.—This morning 25 wagon loads of Melrose park citizens arrived at the side track, one mile and a half north of LaGrange, where the cars containing the negroes imported from Alabama to take the places of white men in the Melrose Park Steel Works, are lying.

The negroes, believing that an attack was contemplated, sheltered the men as best they could, and gathering all the fire arms and other weapons at hand, prepared to make a desperate resistance. It took only a minute, however, to inform the men that the party came, not with the intention of fighting, but to supply the unfortunate people with food. Two wagon loads of all kinds of eatables were distributed among the almost famished negroes many of whom had nothing to eat for 48 hours.

The spokesman of the party said the negroes had been lied to and were not to blame for the storm of indignation that had arisen in Melrose Park.

A committee was appointed to look after the affairs of the negroes and to see that they got back to their homes without further molestation.

Will Be "Open" Factory.

Dayton, O., July 26.—The Davis Sewing Machine works closed down last night. Each employee received in his pay envelope a note stating the factory would re-open August 19 as an open shop and all employees desiring to retain their present positions would be required to make application before August 3 in person to the superintendent and sign a card which is practically a renunciation of unions.

Sunday School at the State Encampment Ground.

The members of the First Presbyterian Sunday school are enjoying a delightful picnic at the beautiful Encampment Grounds today. The children were out at 9 o'clock this morning, chaperoned by the teachers and the pastor, Rev. L. S. Boyce, on the electric cars carrying with them well filled baskets that promised an abundant dinner. The day was delightfully spent in the cool grove on the grounds the party enjoying the bounteous repast at noon, which was followed by singing by the school, addresses by various adults and recitation, etc., by the little ones. The entire picnic was a grand success, as is everything undertaken by the members of the old First church.

TRAFFIC RESUMED ON BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

Men Kissed Other Men's Wives.
Police Called Out.

New York, July 26.—When one man kissed another man's wife the woman did not object at the Italian picnic at Ridgewood park, Brooklyn, last night. The men folks, however, took sides regarding the right and wrong of the action.

The injured are Jos. Nicle, throat cut; Frank Biadato, face, neck and hands slashed; Tonio Costello hurled through a window.

The fight was a remarkable affair, 1500 Italians, members of the Emanuel Society of Liberty of Greater New York, having taken part in some stage of the battle. The trouble broke out at midnight and continued until this morning, when 50 policemen swooped down on the rioters and arrested 15. The injured men may recover.

FOSBURG IS FREE

Judge Holds That State Made No Case Against Young Defendant.

Acquittal Gives General Satisfaction to the Community Which Has Held From the First That May Fosburg Was Killed by Burglars as the Family maintained—When Announcement Was Made this Morning Fosburg Was Overwhelmed With Congratulations.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 26.—Robert Stewart Fosburg is a free man. The celebrated trial is over and the young man who was charged with murdering his sister has been declared not guilty by the jury of 12 men on an order from the court.

This occurred in court here this morning.

It took just eight minutes to convene the court, charge the jury and declare young Fosburg innocent of the manslaughter of his sister May. The jury filed into the jammed court room and took their seats after court convened. There was the most intense silence as Judge Stevens followed the jurymen into the room. It took him exactly four minutes to tell the jury that the government had not sustained its case and to order the jury to return a verdict of "not guilty." Two minutes afterwards young Fosburg had been ordered to stand up and was formally discharged.

The judge said: During the six days we have listened to the story of one of the gravest crimes in the history of the commonwealth. The trial has proceeded in the form of an inquest. A great deal of evidence has been introduced without objection. It is due to the chief of police to say that he has tried to do his duty.

"A motion has been made to take this case from the jury. The government has not furnished proof of this crime.

"You are directed to give a verdict of not guilty."

Immediately there was a demonstration which was quickly quieted.

"Mr. Foreman, what say you? Is the defendant guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty," said Foreman Lyons immediately.

Again there was applause but this was held back while the jury and family quickly left the court room.

The formality of delivering young Fosburg's discharge was impressive. Immediately after Foreman Lyons of the jury had said "not guilty," the clerk returned to the other jurymen, with "Gentlemen, your foreman has returned a verdict of not guilty. So say you all?"

"We do," came the reply almost as one man.

"Robert Stewart Fosburg (stand up, and hear the verdict," said the clerk.

Young Fosburg immediately arose. "The indictment charging you with manslaughter is dismissed. You are found not guilty."

It was 9:25 o'clock today when the clerk finished this.

Then Judge Stevens took the floor again and in a few words delivered his last remarks to the jury. They were simply in the nature of thanks.

Young Fosburg resumed his seat after this and a moment afterward the Fosburg family arose and left the court room going immediately to the Hotel Wendell.

Hundreds tried to congratulate the young man but he did not remain long in sight.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 26.—Without the knowledge of spectators and newspaper men, Chas. E. Hibbard, senior counsel for the defense, moved late yesterday afternoon that Robert Fosburg be acquitted of the charge of manslaughter for which he has been on trial for seven days. All the evidence had been put in at 4:20 yesterday and the court was immediately adjourned, but counsel for both sides and Judge Stevens retired to the lobby, where Mr. Hibbard and District Attorney Hammond argued the motion. No decision was rendered until this morning.

Mr. R. L. Fosburg the gray-haired mother, went upon the witness stand yesterday and told in simple words how her daughter was killed by masked men and of the struggle. Her story was given with frequently uncontrolled emotion. Her voice failed her and she shed tears. Miss Bertha Sheldon, a guest in the Fosburg home on the night of the tragedy, was another important witness. By her testimony the defense wished to show that there were burglars in the house and that they were seen by little Beatrice Fosburg.

There was a long argument between counsel over the Government's objections to the admission of this evidence, but the Court finally allowed it to go in because what was said was spoken in the presence of the defendant.

Miss Sheldon was relating the story of her awakening by a "piercing scream" and declared that she opened the door leading to May Fosburg's room and cried, "What is the matter?" Robert, Beatrice and her father and mother were in the room at the time. Witness saw the body of May upon the floor, and at that instant Beatrice replied, "Burglars have entered the house and shot May."

Mrs. E. B. Ballard, now of Madison, Wis., another witness, declared that on the fatal night about midnight she heard two men talking loudly in front of her house, and that after they had been gone about an hour she heard pistol shots far off.

Mrs. Nellie Beverly of East Cheshire, who lived in Pittsfield, testified that her husband was very sick on the night of August 20, and she claimed that he was disturbed by the loud breathing of two men who had stopped running when opposite her house. She opened the blind and told one of the men who was standing by a tree to go away.

Mrs. Fosburg was the last witness for the defense, and immediately after her testimony was concluded the defense rested.

At the close of the session Judge Stevens, with the counsel for both sides, retired to the anteroom, where Mr. Joyner, for the defense, made a long argument on the question of his suggestion that the Judge order a verdict of not guilty.

Tells Conflicting Stories—Arrested on Woman's Affidavit.

Washington, July 26.—James Gray, white, 38 years old, is under arrest here pending an investigation by the police, who suspect that he is the burglar connected with the Fosburg murder mystery. An affidavit made before the New York chief of police by a woman, a friend of the man, called "Lew" Gray, a professional burglar, states that Gray left her in Springfield, Mass., the day of the Fosburg murder and upon his return told her that "he had to shoot some one." In order to get away, James Gray the man arrested here, is unable to give a satisfactory explanation of his late movements. He said his home was in Indianapolis where his father now lives. Later he changed his story and said his home was in Union Pier, Mich., and that he had lived in Chicago and Cumberland, Md.

SCHLEY NO COWARD SAYS CAPT. EULATE.

Maneuver of the Brooklyn in Santiago
Fight Was a Proper One Says the Spaniard.

New York, July 26.—A Cadiz, Spain, special to the Journal today gives an interview with Captain Eulate who commanded the ill-fated Vizcaya, regarding the part rear Admiral Schley played in the Santiago fight. The interview read: "As a gentleman, I can't appreciate any maneuver of the Brooklyn in the battle on the third of July in front of Santiago as an act of cowardice, because although the Brooklyn went to port when the Teresa with Admiral Cervera aboard tried to ram him, and afterward when I, in the Vizcaya, also steered toward him, he further fell off 22 degrees.

"This maneuver, considering the position of the other American ships, which were attacking the Vizcaya by the stern and quarter, was a proper one."

Being a Record Breaker Largest Number in One Day Since Cholera
Plague of 1869.—The Hot Wave
Continued Thursday Over Corn Belt
But There Will be Showers Tonight and Temperature Will be Moderate.

St. Louis, Mo., July 26.—The greatest hot spell in the history of St. Louis, and which has cost so many lives, is at an end. The cooling breeze which yesterday brought relief to the suffering populace and reduced the death rate, continuous today, and more joy is found in the prediction of the weather bureau that showers will come shortly. Yesterday was a record breaker in the mortuary office, 114 burial permits being issued, the largest number for one day since the cholera plague in 1869. The maximum temperature yesterday was 99, being 8 degrees cooler than the previous day.

Relief is at Hand.

Washington, July 26.—The hot wave continued Thursday over the corn belt with a minimum temperature between 95 and 102 degrees and there was no rain beyond a few scattering showers and thunderstorms in western Nebraska, southeastern Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, southwestern Missouri and northern Ohio. North of the corn belt moderate temperature continued with quite general thunderstorms, heavy rains having occurred in southwestern Wisconsin and in portions of the Michigan peninsula. There were also showers in the lower lake regions, middle Atlantic and west gulf states, the southwest and the extreme central west.

There will be showers tonight and Saturday in the south Atlantic and the greater portion of the middle Atlantic states; showers tonight in the lower lake region, and tonight and Saturday in the gulf states. Temperatures will continue moderate over these districts.

CONGRESS SHOULD INVESTIGATE

There will be some disappointment among the friends of Admiral Schley over the fact that he has called for a naval court of inquiry to determine the facts of the Santiago campaign. It is almost certain that the court will be packed against him by the conspirators of the navy department.

General Miles had a taste of this experience. He asked a military court of inquiry on his charges that bad beef had been provided for the army in the West Indies. His request was granted with the result that, with a stack of evidence two feet high on the subject of putrid beef before the court, they found that the charge of General Miles against the rascally commissaries and contractors was not sustained.

The verdict of the packed military court was against General Miles, who sought to protect the army from fraud through bad rations—not against the commissary department which had furnished the bad rations.

That was the result of a court appointed by the enemies of General Miles in the war department. Probably Admiral Schley will encounter a similar verdict from a prejudiced or indigent court influenced by his enemies in the navy department.

The only just and thorough investigation into the affairs of the Santiago campaign that can be made will come through a committee of congress. Of course, an attempt would be made to pack a congressional committee of investigation, but a fight for honesty and justice can be openly made in the senate and the house which cannot be made in the secret recesses of the navy department.

The congressional investigation should include not merely the incidents of the Santiago campaign. It should extend to all the bureaus of the department and to every nest of favoritism. The naval court may reveal some truth. A congressional inquiry would reveal the whole truth.

This investigation should begin with Secretary Long at the top and follow the entire course of affairs down to "Laborer" MacLay the libeler, at the slimy bottom.

The Strike and the Tariff.

(Indianapolis News.)
The strike in the steel industry is not likely to strengthen that element in the Republican party which stolidly opposes all change in the tariff course it is absurd to talk of the necessity for protecting the great steel trust. Our manufacturers can make steel products more cheaply than they can be made anywhere else in the world. Their labor is better, their organization more complete, their mills more efficiently equipped and their capital more abundant. In every natural advantage—raw material, fuel and transportation—they have the better of their foreign competitors.

A Return to Democratic Principles.

(Atlanta Journal.)
The action of the Ohio Democracy will have a tremendous effect. It will make more certain the return to democratic principles and policies as they were held and proclaimed before the Chicago convention of 1896. It has made doubly sure the assurance already given that the Democratic party will go forth in 1904 with other candidates and a far different platform than those for which it invited the support and confidence of the country in 1900.

Dominated by an Oligarchy.

(Indianapolis Sentinel.)
Those who are familiar with the oligarchy which dominated the Republican party during the Grant administration must be impressed with the analogy presented by the present clique which completely controls the policy of the party. We would advise every Republican politician with lofty aspirations to make himself solid with that oligarchy of which Mr. Hanna is the propelling power.

A Difference in Methods.

(Omaha World-Herald.)
When the people want anything from Congress they make a big ado for a short time, and then quit. The result is that Congress pays no attention to them. But when the trusts want anything they keep hammering away until they get it. The shipping subsidy grafters are still at work.

Morgan's Raid.

Thirty-eight years ago Wednesday John Morgan, the raider, passed through the eastern part of this county, says the Cambridge Sun. He burned the depot at Lore City before daylight. The iron safe in the U. & O. depot at that place was thrown into Leatherwood creek and only recovered a few years ago. Morgan went across to Washington where he made a stand at Clement's hill, but was driven out by Shackleford's Michigan cavalry. One of the rebels whose name was Monan was killed and two others badly wounded during the short battle. None of the Union men were hurt but they do say that T. C. Boymer was mortally scared. Morgan's route through this section was a cigar route named Homston who formerly worked at St. Clairsville.

Japan has two imperial universities, one at Tokio, the other at Kioto. The latter is only three years old.

ARIZONA

IS TO BE HERE AGAIN COMING SEASON.

Something About the Play in Which Kirk LaShelle, Formerly of Newark, is Interested.

"Arizona," Augustus Thomas' masterpiece, with the same excellent company which has already been largely instrumental in popularizing the piece, is numbered among Kirk LaShelle's plays for the coming season. Arizona, which played to a large house here last season, will visit Newark again during the coming season. Mr. Harry Fulton will be "ahead" of this splendid company again the coming season. Miss Marguerita Sylva, whose stellar debut in Kirk LaShelle's opera-comique "The Princess Chic" last year, proved a triumph from the start, is spending the summer at Lake Mahopac, N. Y. Miss Sylva's cottage is situated in a sequestered nook overlooking the lake and she declares herself delighted with the quiet restfulness of her surroundings. She is fond of outdoor sports, is a great swimmer and equestrienne and can also shoot with the aim of an expert. The cast of "The Princess Chic" has been improved in many minor details and rehearsals begin shortly. The tour for the approaching season extends all over the United States, including the cities of the Pacific coast as well as those of Canada.

As Mr. LaShelle is a former Newark man, his friends here will be interested to know that he has preparations afoot to present his star, Frank Daniels, next season in a new musical comedy. Designers, costumers and scenic artists are at work upon the elaborate production, and rehearsals start shortly. The book of this new piece is by A. R. Barent author of "1492," "Jack and the Beanstalk" etc. Where other guarantees needed the fact that it has been accepted by Kirk LaShelle who is himself a finished librettist should suffice. His new production is one eminently fitted to the famous comedian Frank Daniels who has made thousands forget their troubles and laugh.

"The Bonnie Brier Bush," to be produced by Mr. LaShelle is justly accounted one of the features of the coming season. This play, which will not likely be seen outside of New York and the larger Eastern cities for some time, is a drama founded upon the stories of Ian MacLaren. The central incident in the story is the regeneration of Lachlan Campbell, a Scotch shepherd, who casts off his daughter, Flora for a fancied error, only to become reconciled to her in the end. The leading role, that of Campbell, is assumed by the veteran actor, J. H. Stoddart, while the part of Flora is in the competent hands of Irma LaPierre who attained distinction in the cast of "Way Down East." Flora and young Lord Hay are wedded, despite parental objections on both sides. While the play on the whole is sufficiently conventional to please, it has many strong and original situations. Among these is the stand taken by the village minister, who refuses to accede to the demands of bigotry and expel Flora Campbell from his church. With practical Christianity the young clergyman opposes the austerity of the elders and deacons, wins his point and with it the love of the girl who had at first rejected him because she believed him to be narrow. The staging of the piece is said to be excellent and the cast contains many other notable names.

Union Men Fired.
Information at McKeepsport leads to the belief that the big mill of the National Tube company in that city will shortly be involved in the strike. Thursday was payday at the works and members of the new Amalgamated lodge organized last Saturday received notice that their services were no longer required. That this will bring on a conflict at the mill there is little doubt, for it is a blow at the very privilege the Amalgamated association is striving for at the other mills of the steel trust.

An important move on the part of the Amalgamated Association is said to be in contemplation. It was asserted that all arrangements have been completed for unionizing the Riverside plant of the National Tube company at B. wood, near Wheeling. This plant is a part of the United States steel corporation and employs 2,500 hands. Heretofore it has employed only nonunion men. No attempt has ever been made to antagonize the management. The men, except the highly skilled workmen, are generally foregners, and it is stated by a prominent labor leader that the entire force, or a large majority, is ready to cast lots with the Amalgamated association, missionaries having been laboring with them some time. It is said a meeting will be held and that the men will go into the Amalgamated association despite the fact that they may be called out at any time to assist in breaking the strike in the sheet steel mills.

Organizer Fern of the American Federation of Labor was a caller at the offices of Amalgamated Association. He had a long conversation with President Shaffer, and set at rest all stories to the effect that the federation was not in sympathy with the Amalgamated association by saying that the federation was ready and waiting to assist the Amalgamated association in both financially and morally in the strike whenever asked. President Shaffer appears to be in a more hopeful mood than he has been for some time. He declared that he was perfectly satisfied with his personal inspection of the conditions in Wellsville, and apprehended no difficulty in keeping his men in line at that place. President Shaffer evinced no surprise when mention was made of the criticism offered by other labor leaders regarding his bringing on this battle at this time. He said he expected criticism from many people, but it did not alter his position nor the conviction he held that he was perfectly right.

GARLAND UNABLE TO GET TERMS FROM THE MAGNATES.

An Appeal to be Made to Hanna—Attitude of the Manufacturers Unaltered—The Strike.

Pittsburg, July 26.—The peace mission of M. M. Garland to New York on behalf of the conservative element in the Amalgamated Association, has failed. Mr. Garland was unable to secure from the steel manufacturers any terms on which a settlement could be reached. They would not recede an inch from the attitude they have taken, holding that the leaders of the workers precipitated the fight, and peace negotiations are off. At the same time another means is being sought to carry the olive branch to J. P. Morgan. Joseph Bishop, secretary of the Ohio state board of arbitration, is working as mediator, it is learned from high authority, and plans, it is understood, to reach the combine people through Senator Hanna. Mr. Bishop is acting with the approval of the Amalgamated leaders, and carries credentials from President Shaffer explaining the attitude of the association. There is little doubt that Senator Hanna will promise to exercise his best endeavors toward a settlement. About his success with the combine people much doubt is expressed.

When seen concerning his trip to New York, Mr. Garland refused to discuss the matter.

From statements made by manufacturers, the attitude of the trust has not been altered in the least. It was said the companies could not afford to treat with the Amalgamated Association any further and especially on the basis of the original demands. The steel company was in a position, it was said, that rendered it absolutely necessary that it should fight the issue to the end. The officials of the tin plate company are understood to be unusually bitter in their denunciation of the strike, as it has injured them the most and their company had been the most considerate of all in treating with the Amalgamated Association in the past. The most significant statement made in this quarter was that when it came to a settlement the Amalgamated Association would probably deal with each company individually instead of all at one time.

Regarding the methods pursued by the Amalgamated association fighting the steel trust, it was said by officials of the Amalgamated that their organization is complete, that they were fully prepared for battle and have as good facilities for learning the movements of the manufacturers as the manufacturers have for learning theirs. Mr. Shaffer denied emphatically the published story that his mission to Wellsville was for the purpose of getting detectives into the mill in the guise of nonunion men. Developments at Wellsville are watched by both sides closely.

Information at McKeepsport leads to the belief that the big mill of the National Tube company in that city will shortly be involved in the strike. Thursday was payday at the works and members of the new Amalgamated lodge organized last Saturday received notice that their services were no longer required. That this will bring on a conflict at the mill there is little doubt, for it is a blow at the very privilege the Amalgamated association is striving for at the other mills of the steel trust.

An important move on the part of the Amalgamated Association is said to be in contemplation. It was asserted that all arrangements have been completed for unionizing the Riverside plant of the National Tube company at B. wood, near Wheeling. This plant is a part of the United States steel corporation and employs 2,500 hands. Heretofore it has employed only nonunion men. No attempt has ever been made to antagonize the management. The men, except the highly skilled workmen, are generally foregners, and it is stated by a prominent labor leader that the entire force, or a large majority, is ready to cast lots with the Amalgamated association, missionaries having been laboring with them some time. It is said a meeting will be held and that the men will go into the Amalgamated association despite the fact that they may be called out at any time to assist in breaking the strike in the sheet steel mills.

Organizer Fern of the American Federation of Labor was a caller at the offices of Amalgamated Association. He had a long conversation with President Shaffer, and set at rest all stories to the effect that the federation was not in sympathy with the Amalgamated association by saying that the federation was ready and waiting to assist the Amalgamated association in both financially and morally in the strike whenever asked. President Shaffer appears to be in a more hopeful mood than he has been for some time. He declared that he was perfectly satisfied with his personal inspection of the conditions in Wellsville, and apprehended no difficulty in keeping his men in line at that place. President Shaffer evinced no surprise when mention was made of the criticism offered by other labor leaders regarding his bringing on this battle at this time. He said he expected criticism from many people, but it did not alter his position nor the conviction he held that he was perfectly right.

Offer Made by Yerkes Rejected. London, July 26.—The directors of the Metropolitan railway have declined the offer of Charles T. Yerkes to introduce electricity into their system, partly because they are unwilling to surrender control of the line. Mr. Yerkes and his assistants offered to guarantee 2½ per cent on the ordinary stock instead of the present lower rate, but the directors decided to issue fresh capital and to make the installation themselves.

I think my cure a marvel, and gladly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment."

His Long Lost Brother

The ring around the moon had done its work. At 8 o'clock, the time scheduled for the Marjory Daw to haul in her ropes and start for the Michigan side, the worst rain and wind storm of the season was at the height of its fury. As early as 7 o'clock the captain had given up all hope of taking his vessel out before morning, and he, the pursuer and the first mate settled down to a session at draw poker. The first mate had just dealt out a hand when the cabin door flew open with a bang, and old "Commodore" Brainerd came in with a gust of wind that sent the cards whirling from the table.

"Well, I'll be damned!" exclaimed the captain, stung with surprise. "What are you doing out at night like this?"

"I was over on the Sary Jane when the blow came up," said the "commodore" as he started to take off his old rain coat. "and I just thought I'd come over on a tell you how glad you ought to be that you ain't out tonight. I done 28 years' service on the lakes, but I never seen as wild a night as this before."

The "commodore" was known from one end of the great lakes to the other. He was nearing the threescore and ten mark, and for five years he had not been in active service. It had been said that he was familiar with every shoal and eddy in the chain of lakes, and his advice was often sought by some of the oldest captains in the service. He loved the water and the vessels, and to remain away from them was a hardship.

The "commodore" was always welcome on the vessels, for aside from his worth as an advice giver he was a capital story teller. His supply of yarns seemed to be inexhaustible, and he was in his glory when he was "spinning."

"This night," said the "commodore" as he walked over to the cabin window, "makes a sailor wish he was in some other business. But I like it—in port."

The old man's presence had killed the interest in draw poker, and the captain began to fish for a story.

"I reckon you've had plenty to do with bad blows like this on the open, haven't you?" asked the captain.

"I been out when a feller needed an umbrella on a string to keep his hat on with," said the old sailor modestly. "It was just about such a night as this that my hair stood on ends for the first an only time in my life."

The vessel men were silent, but their faces looked askance.

"I wasn't much more'n a cub," began the "commodore" as he sat down on a stool chest, "an that was a darn long time ago, more'n 40 year. I was shippin on an old coast freighter runnin 'tween Boston an the north coast pints. We left Boston at dusk. The cap'n was a bit leary, fer the look in the west was anything but cheerful. We had rounded Turkey point, when the blamdest blow you ever seen come up in a hurry. The cap'n knowed the old tub couldn't stan' the pressure, an he made for an arm around the pint. But the wind was too much, an the boat, the Lenox, rode to some rocks with a crash. There was no time to lose, an it was bump fer yerself. In my excitement I rushed madly to the hole, an as I came back past some flour barrels a dark figure darted by me an fell over a coil of rope. He didn't budge after he hit the floor. I kind o' forgot about the tub goin to pieces an bent down over the form."

"Let me break in here with a little family history. My mother died when I was less'n a year old. The old man couldn't look after us kids—there was me an Ted an Nance—an he turned us over to a good old soul by the name of Mrs. Brecker. Ted was a little terrier. He was allus down jest what Mother Brecker didn't want him to do. One day he disappeared, an nobody ever seen him arterwards. Mother Brecker had come to look upon us kids as her'n, an Ted's disappearance broke her down an killed her a few years later. By this time I was about 12 years old, an when Mrs. Brecker died I had to get out for myself. I took to the farm for awhile, but arter I got strong enough I went to shippin. I'd told Mother Brecker that I'd allus keep an eye open fer Ted."

"Well, to git along with the story. When I was stoopin by the side of the form tryin to git a look at the face a flash of lightning through a porthole give me a full view of his face. Well, sir, would you believe that I nearly keeled over when I seen the features? All the time the timbers was creakin, but I didn't seem to hear 'em. I lifted the body up and drawed it where I could git a better look at it. My hair fairly stood!"

"Was he dead?" excitedly broke in the pursuer.

"Did he recognize you?" asked the first mate as he moved nervously.

"Well, sir," continued the old man, ignoring the remarks, "the month was there, an I knowed the forehead in a million."

"It sounds like a fairy tale," said the captain, who was thoroughly interested by this time.

"The feller finally opened his eyes," went on the "commodore" with great feeling "an I spoke to him. There was no German in his blood."

"What had that to do with it?" asked the captain.

"Well," began the old sailor, a faint twinkle coming to his eye, "the feller said suthin in the worst kind of Dutch, an I made for the deck him arter me."

Lord Wellesley's mid-decamp. Kephel, wrote a book of travels and called it his personal narrative. Lord Wellesley was quizzing it and said to Lord Plunket: "Personal narrative—what is a personal narrative, Lord Plunket? What should you say a personal narrative meant?" Plunket answered, "My lord you know we lawyers always understand a personal as contradistinguished from real."

LEG CUT OFF

FIREMAN EDW. ROSS WAS HURT AT COLUMBUS.

Newark Man Was Working Under His Engine When It Started, Running Over His Leg.

B. & O. Fireman Edward Ross, met with a serious accident at Columbus near the turn-table, Thursday night. He was firing the 903 engine and was underneath the engine cleaning out the ash pan when the engine started. It is said that a yard engine bumped into the engine, under which the unfortunate man was working. However it is almost certain that the engine started of its own accord.

The engine, however, ran over Mr. Ross, cutting off the left leg about the ankle. He was taken to the Protestant hospital and the necessary surgical operation performed, and he is reading comparatively easy today.

Engineer Ike Denny was in charge of the engine at the time, but was not in the cab, so that he is faultless.

Mr. Ross lives with his family at 253 Race street.

MRS. PEASE

Says She Did Not Attempt to "Nationalize" Frad's Saloon—Statement to the Advocate.

In connection with the police court news in yesterday's Advocate, an interview with N. Frad was published, in which Mr. Frad explained his assault on Mrs. William Pease. It will be remembered that Mr. Frad stated that Mrs. Pease had broken two glasses and had hold of a whiskey bottle in his saloon on North Fourth street, and fearing that she would "Nationalize" the "joint" Frad forcibly put her out of the place.

Mrs. Pease who was seen by the Advocate during the morning states that the interview as given by Frad is incorrect in some respects. She states the case as follows:

"I had served notice not to sell my husband liquor and seeing Mr. Pease enter Frad's place, I followed and arrived in time to see his money on the bar. The man behind the counter was pouring out the whiskey for my husband when I protested, but I broke no glasses in Frad's place nor was there any danger of my 'Nationalizing' the saloon tho' I think that little harm would be done if it were given the Mrs. Nation treatment."

"During our conversation Frad struck me and my arm shows the marks today. I was put out of the place with violence though I went into the saloon not to do any damage but to prevent if possible the sale of liquor to my husband. I feel that I simply did my duty. Mr. Frad was fined for his conduct and he may appeal the case if he cares to do so."

Columbia Wins a Race.

Newport, R. I., July 26.—The Columbia, in a rattling thrash to windward from New London to Newport, gave the Constitution a great beating, the latter finishing a third of a mile astern. # RAILROADS.

'Phone Equipment.

Railroad men are waiting with interest the result of the substitution of the telephone for the telegraph on the Lackawanna road in the operation of trains. As fast as practically the line is being equipped with telephones, which in turn are equipped with photographs which will record every word spoken, making a complete and accurate record of all orders. Experiments already made have yielded results entirely satisfactory and beyond the expectations of the advocates of the telephone system.

Loree Will Make Changes.

President L. F. Loree, of the Baltimore and Ohio, is expected to announce some important changes in a few days. It is admitted now that L. G. Haas and G. L. Potter, who were taken from the Pennsylvania lines, and who hold the title of assistants to the president now will be assigned to important positions. There are rumors that several other officials now connected with the Pennsylvania lines have been slated for good places on the B. & O. President Loree states that there will be no important changes made yet in the passenger department, and that separate offices will be maintained where such exist at present. The B. & O. will be awarded more favorable privileges at Chicago, and there are still rumors to the effect that the through trains will use the new union station at Pittsburg.

OVERBALANCED

AND HE FELL INTO BUCKEYE LAKE THURSDAY.

William Stasel, the Carpenter, Had a Narrow Escape from Drowning.

Rescued by Friends.

Mr. William Stasel, the well known carpenter, had a narrow escape from drowning at the reservoir Thursday afternoon. He was attending the first annual picnic of the Buckeye Lake Club with George Gray and several others in the boat.

In searching for a water lily Mr. Stasel became overbalanced and fell into the water. He became entangled in the dense mass and was almost drowned when his companions succeeded with great difficulty in rescuing him. He is all right today.

As published in this paper yesterday, Frank Handiside also accidentally fell into Buckeye Lake Thursday, but was rescued by fishermen.

FOSBURG IS FREE

He is not guilty.

William W. Shadden and George D. Bowers, connected with a store in New York, positively identified the shoe in evidence as having been purchased at their store on July 5, 1900 by whom they did not know.

Bridges noticed that the size of the shoe worn by the defendant was one half size smaller than the shoe in evidence, which was 8 1/2 C.

Frederick W. Lund was recalled to prove that the defendant was not in New York July 5, the day the shoe was sold, but was at the Fosburg office in Pittsfield.

BURGULAR AND FOSBURG CASE.

New York, July 26.—Captain Titus, Chief of the New York City Detective Bureau, has forwarded to Chief of Police Nicholson and District Attorney Hammond of Pittsfield, Mass., two affidavits concerning the Fosburg case. The first affidavit is made by Alice Dugan, who says that she is a housekeeper on East Forty-second street, this city. She says:

"A girl named Handiside, of Springfield, Mass., who is living with her now, told her about three weeks ago, that a man named Lew Gray and another man visited the house of the Fosburgs on the night of the 19th of August, 1900 and found a revolver on the table and that he shot a girl and escaped."

The second affidavit is made by the Handiside woman, but signed "J. Gray," the last name being that of the man with whom she had been living. She says that her home is in Springfield, Mass.

On August 13, the met Gray in Springfield. He told her that he was going to make a "trick."

She met him again on the 21st and he told her that he and a fellow named Alfred Fey "did a trick" at a house in Pittsfield, that he heard a noise in the house and found a revolver on a table and he shot at some one. He also said that he got a gold watch and hid it under a large tree at Warren. He then left. The next time she met him was in the middle of September in New York on the Bowery. He told her then that he had an awful time getting away from Springfield, as he thought the police were after him.

TROUBLE

in the Republican Camp—Reconvening of the County Convention Called a Farce.

The Republican county convention is called to meet tomorrow, to nominate candidates to fill the vacancies on the ticket. A number of prominent men of the party freely state that the convention is a pure farce, and has been called for the purpose of smoothing over matters with the farmers and others who were very indignant that the convention several weeks ago, which was the only power of making nominations.

It will be remembered that when the convention met and was rushed through without making nominations for certain county officers, the excuse was made that the executive committee could fill the vacancies. This proved to be a subterfuge for the committee had no such power. And now the Republican brethren are up against it again.

The question is asked how can that convention be reconvened, when it adjourned sine die, and not at the call of the chairman or secretary.

The Central Committee also meets tomorrow to organize and appoint the executive committee, which will, or will not, recommend the present postmaster for a second term.

Several prominent members of the Central Committee blame J. M. Leves for the state of affairs pertaining to the county ticket, and in connection with a criticism of his methods in the convention, in a recent issue of the Ohio State Journal, which they cite, they are indulging in some pretty plain talk.

Not a Trust.

"Yes, you bet I'm down on trusts," said the chairman as he lugged out a chair to be the time, "and if I get a chance I shall do all I can to bust 'em. There's a heap of difference between a trust and a family syndicate."

"Do you mean?" was asked.

"Well, I own the only lute in my county which has not any Bob in it. My son and I own all the farms on the place. My son Bill owns the only land around where farmers can't dig. It used to be free fishing for all, but three years ago I forced in the lake and organized a family syndicate, and since then we've got out $5 for every fish caught. We ain't complaining any more, but we've got our share of the catch and we're all happy."

OHIO CROPS

Conditions at the Present Time Set Forth in the Weekly Bulletin Just Issued.

The general summary of the weekly crop bulletin for the week ending July 23 is the subjoined:

The temperature averaged about five degrees above normal, being excessive at close of the week. Showery weather prevailed on the 16th and 17th. Crops much benefited except over limited areas where injured by hail and high winds. Rain is needed in all sections, but the southwestern counties seem to be suffering more than other sections.

The figures following of the corn and wheat sections show the amount of precipitation in inches and hundredths for the week ending at 7 a. m., July 22: Granville, 2.09; Somerset, 0.96.

In some southern and some central and western districts the corn crop is being considerably affected by the dry weather. Many correspondents report that it is rolling daily and that a week more without rain would considerably shorten the crop. A few states that up to the present time the crop has been shortened one-fourth or more, and that five to ten days longer will reduce it one-half and some fields will be past help. In most north-central and eastern counties it is not suffering from drought, but it is making a splendid growth. There is still more complaint of grass and weeds in the last named section.

Wheat is all cut and in shock or barns, and considerable thrashing has been done. A majority of correspondents report a light to fair crop and that the yield is less than was expected. A few correspondents in north and central sections report a good yield.

Out harvest is in progress. The crop is generally heavy but lodged considerably. A large crop of hay has been secured in good condition, but pastures are beginning to need rain.

Irish potatoes are not doing well. The yield is generally light, and they are of inferior quality. Sweet potatoes are promising. In the southwestern counties garden crops are suffering for rain.

Tobacco is doing very well except in the extreme southwestern counties, where it has been too hot and dry.

Early apples are ripening. Late apples are reported as less promising than at any previous time. Peaches are ripening and a good crop is expected. Blackberries will be small. There are many reports that grapes are rotting on the vines.

$1 AND $2 BILLS

That Are Worthless Are in Circulation in Northern Ohio—Clever Swindlers Are at Work.

Newark people would do well to watch their $1 and $2 bills, as clever swindlers have recently worked a large number of Cleveland people with such bills on the state bank of New Brunswick, N. J. The notes are worthless.

The crooks base their operations on the assumption that their victims are not posted on the history of the country. Within the last two weeks they passed a confederate note for $100 with perfect success. The note on the state bank is not as easy a swindle to detect, but the state bank is as dead of precipitation in inches and hundredths for the week ending at 7 a. m., July 22: Granville, 2.09; Somerset, 0.96.

No notes on the state bank of New Brunswick, N. J., have been issued for many years. A curious circumstance is responsible for the appearance of the present notes, however. The bank redeemed its outstanding issue of paper money nearly twenty years ago. At that time it had in its possession a large number of notes printed for circulation that had not been issued. They were undated and unsigned, and minus the serial number that bears witness to the authenticity of paper money.

Some one secured possession of some of these notes and now years afterward they are being used to swindle people.

The note is similar in appearance to the ordinary bank note, and easily passes the careless observer as good money. A second look is needed to see the indications of its worthlessness.

On one side is printed a dog's head, the state arms of New Jersey and the picture of a woman's head. The lettering is "State Bank of New Brunswick New Jersey," in large type.

Where the date should be appears only the figures "18—" the blank showing where the date was to be filled in on issue. "Cashier Manning" is the only signature on the note. Blanks appear where the names of the president and treasurer should be.

They will enumerate all the many events that will take place on the race track at the park and the large lists of prizes will also be given. It is the purpose of the business men at the head of the affair to make the picnic a success and every business man will be asked to do his share.

As before announced everything at the park including admission, theatre, all the amusements and even the refreshments will be free to everybody. The grocers propose to make this "one big day," and it looks like they will succeed. They are going at things in the right way.

There will be a general suspension of business and the indications are that the biggest crowd in years will be at Idlewild on August 1.

Behind Our Fan.

(Newark American-Tribune.)

The Advocate of Wednesday in its new make-up made a very striking and handsome appearance. This was brought about by the purchase of one of the latest and most improved Cox Duplex presses, that enables our neighbors to print from a single roll with each revolution a complete paper. We heartily congratulate our friends that the prosperity of these good times has dealt with them so generously. Newark is also to be congratulated for having two wide-awake, hustling papers which cover the local field so well. Rapid strides have been made during the past year by the newspapers of Newark, until today there is not a city of its size in the United States that has better or more enterprising papers.

A FAMILY PAPER.

The fact that the Newark Advocate is pre-eminently a FAMILY NEWSPAPER and the added fact that it goes in to so many more families than any other Newark newspaper constitutes its great merit in the eyes of advertisers. Advertisers use its columns because it brings them PROFITABLE results.

The Advocate want columns to continue to grow in popularity with the people. If you want to rent a house or have a house to rent, use the Advocate's want columns. For rent, for sale, lost, found, for exchange and like notices three lines three days 25 cents.

STOLEN BY A BEAR.

Mrs. Nancy McKinney, who died recently near Cadiz, Ohio, at the age of 122, had the unique experience in her infancy of being carried off by a bear. The incident occurred in the fall of 1801. After several hours scouring the woods, the crying of an infant directed the searchers to some underbrush, where the child was discovered. The bear ran away when the party approached it, leaving the infant unharmed. ## JOHNSON'S HOLD UP

Mr. Johnson didn't like footpads. One night it was particularly dark and gloomy when he became aware of the figures of two men leaning against an old shed some 500 feet ahead of him. There was no mistake about it. The men were there for business. Mr. Johnson hesitated to cross the street, as it might show suspicion and fear on his part. So he jammed his hat down tight on his head, buttoned up his coat securely, took a long breath and started in to run the gantlet, ready to take to his heels at the first sign of danger. The men stood motionless, however, until he was within a few feet; then they suddenly separated. Tom Johnson's heart gave a great thump, but he kept valiantly on, determined to outrun them, but just as he came well abreast of them they precipitated themselves upon him, one on either side. Tom gathered all his strength together for a spring, raised his arms, flung off his assailants and with a mighty leap started down the street.

When loss of breath finally compelled him to stop, his hat was gone and his coat unbuttoned and flying open with the wind. He felt for his watch. It was gone. Now, Tom Johnson was not a coward, and his wrath at the dexterity of the thieves immediately rose to the boiling point. There was no going home then. He would go back and get that watch if they killed him. As he rapidly retraced his steps he saw his men in the distance, and they apparently saw him, for they quickly disappeared in a convenient doorway. Tom Johnson in his present mood, however, was not to be dismayed or foiled. He marched straight into the dark passageway where the two men were crouching. "See here," he said, "you blankety blank thieves, hand over that watch quick, or there'll be trouble. Do you hear?"

Instead of the cold muzzle of a revolver against his face he felt rather than saw a watch pressed against his hand. Surprise could have knocked him over with a feather, but he kept that emotion locked within his own breast and marched triumphantly home to his wife, who, alarmed at the lateness of the hour, was waiting in an agony of apprehension. He let himself in with his latchkey, his heart filled with unholly pride. Amanda was waiting at the top of the hall stairs, the candle in her hand lighting up a face all puckered with anxiety and eyes red with weeping.

"Tom," she cried, "is it you? Oh, what is the matter?"

"Matter?" said Tom, who could afford now to be a little overbearing and impatient at the silliness and fears of weak woman. "Nothing's the matter. Why didn't you go to bed long ago?"

As he came into the glare of the candle her face expressed a new fear.

"Tom Johnson, where have you been? Your face is dripping with perspiration, and just look at your tie!"

Then he hurriedly told of his night's adventures and was indulging in natural self congratulations on the discomfiture of the robbers when Amanda exclaimed:

"Oh, but, Tom, you didn't have your watch with you today, dear. You left it under the pillow this morning."

No lightning change artist ever equalled Mr. Johnson in the rapidity with which his countenance fell from 90 in the shade to 20 below zero. He looked at the watch in his pocket. Sure enough, it was none of his. There was no use denying the fact. He had played a daring hold up game and come out a winner.

"Oh, Tom," cried his wife, "will they send you to jail?"

"Don't see why I didn't think of not taking my watch this morning."

"Why, couldn't you see when they gave this to you that it wasn't a bit like yours? It's a great deal nicer, that's what it is, and they'll lock you up for robbery. I know they will," wailed Mrs. J.

"Oh, confound it all! Quit your crying. I'm going back and find those fellows this minute."

"Oh, no, no! Not at this time of night. They'll kill you sure."

"Amanda, you go to bed and go to sleep. I guess if I can hold up two big, husky fellows once I can take care of them again."

The men were gone when Mr. Johnson reached the spot, but the dark doorway where the robbery was committed turned out to be the rear entrance to a saloon, so he interviewed the saloon keeper.

"Yes," said that individual, "there were two men in here awhile ago, a little the worse for wear, who said some villain had held them up."

"Who were they? Do you know them?" cried the anxious Tom.

"No. They don't live around these parts. They were fine looking gents. Been visiting near here and got loaded with a little too much wine."

The next day there appeared in the papers an ad. something to this effect:

Will the two gentlemen who were held up Tuesday on street, near Avenue K, communicate with the undersigned. They will learn something to their advantage. L X 5, PICKET.

To which request no answer was ever received, and Tom Johnson is still the possessor of two timepieces.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wants to Make Sure.

A Kansas school board received the following letter the other day from one of the teachers: "I would like to have the refusal of the school as long as you are willing to hold it for me, though I can't say positively that I will not teach nor positively that I will. If I am married, as I think I will be, of course I will not want the school. But you know the old story about many a slip, and I would hate to be out of a job as well as the other."

ITALIAN GIRLS

Never Flirt—They Take Love Seriously
ly and Marry Only With Their Family's Approval.

In Italy, according to Marchesa Theodoli, who writes about "What Girl-Life in Italy Means," in the Ladies' Home Journal for August, there is plenty of love-making, but not between the young people of the higher social class. Among the lower classes the youths are free to please themselves, and there is no lack of furious love-making, seasoned with jealousy, estrangements, peace-making, tears and smiles, as Mother Nature intended it to be. But there is no flirting. Love is taken very seriously, and on the girl's side, at least, is indulged in with marriage as the end in view. Flirting for the sake of amusement, simply to while away the long summer days or as a mild stimulant at balls and parties, with no idea of matrimony in the background, is a kind of sport which has not yet reached us from beyond the Alps. We are so far behind the times that to grant the slightest privilege to a man who has not avowedly shown that he means marriage would be considered downright dishonesty by a respectable Italian girl. A girl who is not married at thirty will remain in the same dependent state as at seventeen. She would no more think of walking the streets alone, paying a visit or traveling from the city to the country without a companion or chaperon than she would think of choosing her own clothes and dressing as she liked best. Not even at that mature age would she choose a husband for herself without the approval of her family.

JAMES W. GRAY

DIED VERY UNEXPECTEDLY ON THURSDAY NIGHT,

While in a Chair at His Home—Burial on Sunday Afternoon—Sketch of His Life.

Deep was the gloom which settled over the community this morning when it was learned that the relentless hand of death had touched one of the homes in this city, and stilled into eternal rest the heart of Mr. James W. Gray, book keeper at McNamar's machine works, and one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Newark.

Mr. Gray had apparently been in the enjoyment of his usual health, and on Wednesday took an active part in the big picnic, given by Golden Rod Lodge, 100, A. O. U. W., at Idlewild Park. On Thursday he was at work at his desk as usual, and ate a hearty supper on Thursday evening. He remained up until 10 o'clock, sitting in his chair. About that time he was seen to suddenly sink forward and, upon examination it was found that he was dead. A physician was called in, who pronounced life extinct, and gave it as his opinion that his death had been caused by heart disease with which the deceased had been troubled for some time. About a year ago he had a very severe attack of the disease, and gave it as his opinion that it would carry him off some day.

The deceased was the son of the late John W. Gray, a former prominent citizen of Licking county, and was born on December 13, 1844. He received a common school education in the public schools of Newark, and when only sixteen years of age he entered the Newark postoffice in the capacity of clerk, and served continuously in that office for a period of 20 years, and had the reputation of being one of the most expert handlers of mail ever in the office. Upon leaving the postal service he entered the employ of Mr. John McNamar, manufacturer of engines and portable saw mills, this city, and has served in the capacity of book keeper there for 20 years.

On February, 1875, he was married to Miss Cora Elder, daughter of the late Samuel Elder, at one time a well known resident of this county. From this union six children were born, four of whom are living, being Lena, Nell, Arthur and Alice Gray. Besides his widow and children, Mr. Gray leaves a sister, Mrs. J. T. Collins of North Fourth street.

The deceased was a prominent member of the Baptist church of Newark, and for a long time had been one of the deacons and always took an active part in everything that tended to the welfare of the church.

He was also prominent in secret society circles. He was one of the charter members of Bayard Taylor Council, Royal Arcanum of this city, and was insured for $2,000 in this society. He was also a member of Golden Rod Lodge, A. O. U. W., of this city, having been the efficient recorder of the Lodge for a long time. He also carried an insurance of $2,000 in this order.

The bearded widow and sorrowing children have the sympathy of all their friends in their great sorrow.

The funeral will take place from the late home of the deceased, 140 Elm street, on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, under the auspices of Golden Rod Lodge, A. O. U. W., and the interment will be made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

PRESIDENT WINN

Says Company Will Have Abundance of Gas—Contracts Ready for the People Monday.

To the People of Newark—During the past few days rumors have become current that the Licking County Gas and Oil Company, which has been granted a franchise to supply the people of Newark with natural gas, will be unable to do so for the lack of gas. I desire to inform the people of Newark and Licking county that the Licking County Gas and Oil Company has an abundance of gas, and that new and promising wells are being drilled in. On and after Monday, July 29, I will be at my office, No. 23 1/2 South Park Place, where I will be prepared to make contracts with the citizens of Newark to supply them with gas after the first of January, 1902 although we expect to have the gas piped to Newark long before that time, as it is the intention of the company to commence the work of laying the pipes immediately.

Pepsin Syrup Co.,
Dear Sirs—For the past ten years I was troubled with my stomach. About four years ago I was taken down with rheumatism; was not able to do a day's work for three years. All medicine seemed of no benefit to me. A year ago I was advised to take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I truly believe I would have died but for this medicine. My rheumatism is entirely gone and my stomach is in good condition. It has saved my life and I cannot recommend it too highly.

ECZEMA

Eczema sets the skin on fire. The acid poisons in the blood are forced out through the pores of the skin, causing intense redness, burning and itching. So terrible is the itching at times, especially when the body is overheated, that the slightest friction causes the patient to scratch the skin to pieces, and that he must scratch or go crazy. He knows from experience that the only cures matters worse, but, made desperate by the terrible burning and itching, he is for the time being, indifferent to after effects. There are several forms of Eczema, the moist, or weeping kind, that comes in little pustules which discharge a watery, sticky fluid, which dries and peels off in bran-like scales. So profuse is the discharge at times that large scabs or crusts form, which are both painful and troublesome, and not easily removed. Red, disfiguring bumps and sores are symptoms of Eczema. The dry form usually attacks the head, hands and feet; the skin, becoming hard and rough, often cracking open and bleeding, and attended with much itching. Eczema depends upon a poisoned condition of the blood, and local applications, while soothing and cooling, and may to some extent relieve the inflammation and itching, cannot be considered cures, because external remedies do not reach constitutional or blood diseases. Salves, ointments, powders, lotions and soaps do more harm than good, by smearing over and sealing up the pores of the skin, thus forcing the poisons back into the blood. S. S. S. antiseptics and neutralizes the acid poisons, and drives out of the circulation all impurities and humors, and the pure, rich blood is carried to the diseased skin, which quickly allays the inflammation, opens the closed pores, and the skin becomes soft, smooth and ready to perform its proper functions. To be rid of Eczema you must first purify and build up the blood, and then surely and effectually does this S. S. S., the only guaranteed reliable blood purifier. Mr. L. Marno, Escondido, San Diego County, Cal., writes: "My body broke out with a rash or eruption which in spite of all efforts to cure continued to get worse. The itching, especially at night, was simply terrible; it would almost disappear at times, only to return worse than ever. I had tried many highly recommended preparations without benefit, and hearing of S. S. S. determined to give it a fair trial, and was immediately delighted when a few bottles cured me entirely, removing every blotch and pimple from my body. I shall not fail to recommend S. S. S. whenever an opportunity occurs."

HAPPENINGS IN ALL PARTS OF OHIO.

All Sorts of Buckeye News Items Boiled So that Only Real Facts Remain.

Dayton—After M. J. Wright had been appointed his guardian, his 14-year-old son, William, was wedded to Clara Collins, an 18-year-old lady. Hay will attain his majority in two weeks, but said that he could not wait that length of time, and a guardianship was arranged to make the marriage legal.

Wooster—News of a tragedy in which young ladies of a prominent family of this city were the victims, reached here yesterday afternoon. Misses Grace and Pearl Billman are spending the summer with a sister at Mammoth Springs, Ark. Wednesday night they got up from their bedrooms to look for burglars, when a revolver in the hands of Miss Grace was discharged, the bullet lodging in the breast of her sister, producing a wound that was pronounced mortal.

Cincinnati—B. M. Weatherly while assisting Frank Myers and Clayton James to harvest hay, had an experience with a blue racer snake. He was crossing a pasture lot on the Susan Blagg farm when he was suddenly attacked by the snake, which wound around his body three times. In attempting to get a stick he fell, as his legs were completely fastened. He called for help and James ran to assist him. Before James arrived Weatherly fainted. James loosened the snake by cutting it in two with his pocket knife. The snake measured 7 feet and 7 inches in length. Weatherly was greatly shocked and exhausted from the scare.

Toledo—The Home Telephone Company had a land of $27,500 with Probate Court Judge Millard as a guarantee that the company will construct a new telephone line in this city and have the same in full operation December 31, 1903, with 2,000 subscribers.

BOWSER AND REFORM

HE STARTS A CRUSADE AGAINST THE NIGHT PEDDLERS.

It Was Very Successful For a Time and Was Greatly Appreciated by the Neighbors, but the Reformist Finally Came to Grief.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]
Mr. Bowser had come home with the sun on his face, and while he didn't care that it was all Mrs. Bowser's fault, he passed the evening curled up on the family lounge and was ready at the slightest provocation to start a row. She realized this and offered him an excuse, while at the same time she kept a bag of hot salt on his ear, and the family cat got under the piano and took care not to purr too loudly. It had come to a head, and Mrs. Bowser was returning heartily thanks that the tramp had rung the door bell and that the back yard cats had fought in silence.

"G'WAY, WOMAN—G'WAY!"

lence, if at all, when a popcorn man came along. It was perhaps by accident that he stopped in front of the Bowser residence, but stop he did, and his first yell would have lifted a baby out of its crib. He seemed imbued with the idea that every family on the block was stone deaf and that it needed a voice of thunder to let them know that popcorn awaited them before retiring for the night. At his second yell Mr. Bowser sat up with a look of wonder on his face, and at the third he rose from the lounge and exclaimed:

"By the great horn spoon, are we living in the barbaric age or the twentieth century?"

"He'll go in a minute," soothingly replied Mrs. Bowser, "and I think I'll beat the salt again and we'll go to bed."

But the man didn't go on. He had come to stay, as it were. With a voice which would have done credit to a bull he roared again and again, and as Mrs. Bowser's heart grew heavy and the cat felt her pulses tingle Mr. Bowser tore the bandage from his face and said:

"If you think I'm a man to stand any such outrage as this, I'll soon show you to the contrary. Where's my hat?"

"Put don't be foolish," she pleaded. "If you go out into the night air, your ear will be worse, and it won't do any good to raise a row with a peddler. He's got a license."

"Is a man licensed to whoop and yell and roar like that?" demanded Mr. Bowser. "If he is, then I'll move out of this town tomorrow."

"Please be quiet and come along to bed. The man won't stay more than a minute longer."

"No, you bet he won't! I'm going to begin right here and now to find out whether we live in a Christian community or are cramped out among a tribe of savages. G'way, woman—g'way!"

Mr. Bowser clapped on his hat and passed out. The popcorn man caught sight of him and yelled the loudest yell of all, and his roar was still echoing when a hand fell upon his shoulder and a voice said in his ear:

"By the jumping Jupiter, if you yell again I'll make dog's meat of you!"

"Oh, old man, what's the matter?" asked the peddler as he whirled around.

"The matter is that you've got to shut up and move on or there'll be murder done. The idea of your coming out at 10 o'clock at night and yelling like this! Move on with you!"

"Don't get hot, old man. The people demand popcorn, and I am here to supply the demand—only 5 cents a quart and fresh every hour."

"That peddler will never clearly remember what followed, owing to his suddenness. He had a basket on his arm, and that basket went flying as he himself was slammed against the fence. He was slammed and banged and clugged, and when he managed to wrench himself loose and started at three minutes past he left but and coat and fragments behind. It was a quiet and decisive victory for Mr. Bowser, and the peddler acted like a man on his getting out. He could have justly relied on his laurels, but as Mrs. Bowser came down to the gate and begged him to do so he replied:

"I have set out to do a little reforming, and I don't propose to stop at one case. My John, I'll let you know that Bowser's in town before I'm through with him!"

At that moment a match seller turned the corner with a yell. Whether he was making a long day of it or had come to bed and got up again to supply humanity with matches was immaterial to Mr. Bowser. He set out to meet him, and the meeting took place under a weeping willow. The peddler was a young man with the world before him, but he didn't last two minutes. He had just offered Mr. Bowser an unprecedented bargain in redheaded matches when he was seized in a grip of iron and used to mop up a large space of sidewalk. When his coat finally gave way, he saw his opportunity and took advantage of it, and another laurel wreath gently descended upon Mr. Bowser's brow. In addition to the laurels, several neighbors who had got on to the racket threw up their windows and shouted such stirring words of encouragement as:

"That's it, old man! Go on!"

"Keep 'em going, Bowser—keep 'em going!"

"We want reform, and we'll have it!" Mrs. Bowser made another effort, but it was no use. If she had any chance at all, it was destroyed when a man came along singing a topical song at the top of his voice. He had been singing topical songs all his life as he wended his way homeward through the night, no matter what the hour or how many people had turned over in bed and cursed him, and Mr. Bowser's inference was a complete eye opener. Only a few words passed. He was asked to shut up, and he replied that he'd be hanged if he would. Then he was seized and mopped and banged and slammed, and as he limped away in the darkness he wasn't sure whether he had been tormented by a cyclone or fed through a thrashing machine. This was victory No. 3, with more wreaths and words of encouragement, and Mr. Bowser leaned up against the fence and gasped and panted and felt that feeling of deep satisfaction that comes only to the earnest reformist as victory perches upon his banner.

He was about to withdraw and reap the benefits when a fish peddler, who had been seized with the bright idea of getting ahead of his rivals on the next day's sales, came along with his horse and wagon. He not only had a horn on which to blow, but a voice with which to shout "Fish-h!" until every sleeping babe on the block woke up and wondered if he had turned into a whale. He made the mistake of thinking that Mr. Bowser had come out for a blunder for breakfast, and he was a licked man and his old horse was galloping around the corner before he discovered his mistake. He limped away as soon as he could, but he was not a man to stay licked. On the next street he met some friends and told his tale, and re-enforced by the popcorn man, the sewerer and the match seller, the mob moved down

BADLY HURT

BUT MR. MONTGOMERY IS MUCH BETTER TODAY.

Former Newark Minister While Riding a Wheel at Findlay was Struck by a Street Car.

Rev. John Montgomery, who for several years was pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, now pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Findlay, O., was knocked from his bicycle by a street car in the north end of Findlay Tuesday evening and was badly hurt. Mr. Montgomery turned to get out of the way of a car going south and was struck by a north bound car. He was seriously injured about the head and was hurt internally.

Today the Advocate telegraphed Mr.
Montgomery's wife, inquiring the present condition of Mr. Montgomery and received the following reply:

Findlay, O., July 25.—Mr. Montgomery was very badly hurt Tuesday evening, but is decidedly better this morning. (Signed.) Mrs. John Montgomery.

The encouraging news brought by Mrs. Montgomery's dispatch to the Advocate will be welcomed by Mr. Mont-gomery's hundreds of Newark friends, many of whom were very apprehensive about his condition.
